GIVING HOIL THE HEAR Intermountain Red Cross officials say the BYU community is their largest supplier. Bob Eddington of the Provo of fice said a record 780 pints were drawn from students, faculty and staff last time when the Air Force ROTC sponsored the drive. Drewry said the target this time is 850 pints.

By SCOTT LLOYD Monday Magazine Writer

Blood has inspired both wonder and dread in man since the beginning of recorded history. It has always been obvious that the crimson fluid has some relation to the miracle of life.

Ancient societies believed that a person could prolong his life by drinking blood or rubbing it upon himself. The common superstition of vampirism is still followed in many lowed in

The art of "blood letting" was widely practiced in the middle ages. A disease could supposedly be cured or a demon exorcised by eliminating "bad blood" from the body

Though it still holds many secrets, we know a great deal more today about the mysterious liquid. Modern science tells us that in an average adult, 10 to 12 pints of blood flow through over 60,000 miles of vessels.

It delivers food, oxen and hormones to e cells while removing rbon dioxide and other astes. It carries anodies to combat disse, cools the body and its to seal off wounds.

BYU students will face the red enigma during the week of March 14-17. The Red Cross will bring a mobile unit to the Wilkinson Center and set up a blood collection point in the balloony of the ELWC Blood drive

River of life

Last week, Monday Magazine visited the Intermountain Red Cross Blood Center in Salt Lake City and the blood bank at Utah Valley Hospital to learn the story of what several writers have called the "river of life". The hospital, which is associated with the American Association of Blood Banks, differs in philosophy and approach from the Red Cross, but uses essentially the same procedures in drawing, Speaking to an almost capacity Marriott Center audience at a 12-Stake Fireside, Elder Packer first explained that contrary to current worldly attitudes, deviant sexual behavior is wrong. "It is a transgression" which can lead to "spiritual destruction." Elder Boyd K. Packer of the Council of the Twelve Apostles said Sunday that homosexual behavior is a curable problem when considered as a moral or spiritual matter.

Speaking about homosexual behavior, Elder Packer said, "It is a transgression" which can lead to "spiritual distruction."

discussed by Elder Packer Cures for homosexuality By THAYNE HANSEN Monday Magazine Writer

Elder Packer cautioned those with these moral problems to not be deceived "into thinking such thoughts are normal," adding that "just because you have fallen prey to a clever predator ... don't jump off into spiritual oblivion."

Refuting the thought that deviant sexual behavior increases masculinity, Elder Packer said, "If someone tries, something flips over and the opposite effect takes place." He added that sexual change operations are "no answer at all" for people seeking to find an identity. "That has significant eternal consequences."

He also rejected the scientific belief that the problem is incurable, saying scientists have "not studied it as a moral and a spiritual disorder." When the needle reads "correctable."

"When this is regarded as a moral and spiritual matter," he added, there are some answers which come to light. "The solution rests with the thou shalts and the thou shalt nots."

After having stressed the seriousness of deviant sexual behavior and the possibility of correction, Elder Packer answered the question, "How can it be corrected?" Speaking to people with such problems, he asked them "to explore the possibility that the cause of the problem" is a form of selfishness. When selfishness is explored as a cause, "it opens the possibility of putting some very sick things in order.

"We have had very little success in curing perversion by treating perversion," Elder Packer said. "If we try to treat selfishness there is a possibility of correction. Individuals guilty of selfish acts increasely hurt those around them," Elder Packer

Once someone has admitted "selfishness is at the root, the door is open" for correction. He then cautioned people with a homosexuality problem to not "claim that it is unselfish thinking to relieve the craving of someone with the same affliction."

Even though he reaffirmed deviant sexual behavior can be cured, Elder Packer said he does not "know of any quick spiritual cure-alls, spiritual shock treatments... or spiritual wonder drugs." The solution rests in a long treatment and the obedience to some basic spiritual rules, he said. "Others can lend moral support... but this is a personal battle."

The first step to correction is the self-commitment "to never have another deviant thought," Elder Packer said. Such thoughts must be suppressed. But then he advised, to "not try to discard the bad habit" without replacing it with something good. "Replace it with unselfish thoughts and unselfish acts."

Another essential step, he said, is breaking "all connections" with people or places associated with the deviant behavior. The effort might require a change of social life, job or geographic location, he said. "Look forward to being clean, well and happy."

gingerly guides you to the canteen but you feel okay.

At the canteen you are given cookies and orange punch by a volunteer like Lila Marshall. She is grand mother 19 and proud of the 13 years she has spent with Red Cross.

You are given a red sticker to wear carrying the appeal, "Be nice to me, I donated blood today." Not since leaving home have you been pampered so much.

Observe donors

"The purpose of the canteen is not just to give refreshments," MacKinnon explained. "Here we can observe the donor to see that there are no problems. The sugar in the punch and cookies starts the reproduction of blood." He said the body will replace a pint unit of blood plasma within 24 hours. It takes longer to replace red cells so the donor is cautioned not to

Some units are left as whole blood and transfused to patients

But not all patients need whole blood. In the case of your unit, the blood will be separated into four components.

Only occasionally will donors feel a reaction. "Their legs may get a little rubbery," MacKinnon said. "It's usually because they didn't have anything to eat before coming."

As the bag of blood is left to stand, the red cells begin to sink to the bottom leaving the pale, yellow plasma at the top. This process is helped along as the bag is placed on a centrifuge and spun.

Thus, the pint of blood you gave in the Wilkinson Center might benefit as many as ix people, MacKinnon said. A surgery patient in Salt Lake may receive your red cells. Gamma globulin from your plasma may be used in treating a hepatitis patient in Ogden. A shock victim in Colorado may be treated with serum albumun from the same plasma. The platelets could help a person with bleeding problems in American Fork.

The primary bag is then compressed and the plasma is pushed through the tubing into one of the satellite bags. The primary bag containing the red cells may now be sealed off and refrigerated.

Your part of the scenario may be over but this is by no means the end of the story. Even as you sit munching cookies an employee is dividing and sealing the tubing into several small sections. These samples will be used in determining blood type and in crossmatching.

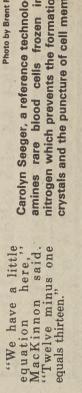

The bag of plasma is spun again at a higher speed. The platelets, which aid in coagulation, are now visible as small, transluscent particles. Most of the plasma is compressed into one of the other bags and the platelets may now be stored at room temperature for up to 72 hours. Two bags remain. One holds the plasma and the other cryoprecipitate which results when the plasma is frozen and then thawed. It is valuable for treating victims of hemophilia. At Utah Valley Hospital, blood bank supervisor Sandy Cullimore determines blood type through the use of serums developed from human blood. A drop is placed in a test tube containing the serum and is spun on a centrifuge. The manner in which antibodies in the serum affect the blood drop determines which of the four major blood groups it belongs

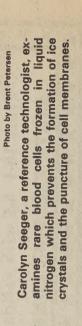

The remarkable thing about donating blood, MacKinnon says, is the body will replace it so there are always twelve pints. But an additional pint has gone to help those in need.

Blood catalogued

Some of the plasma is sent to pharmacies where it is further processed into gamma globulin and other products. Back at the Red Cross Center, the pint-units of blood are meticulously tagged and catalogued along with hundreds of others. The observer is cautioned to be quiet so that the employees are not distracted. A mistake in labeling the blood could be disastrous.

Bolin's last official act was to request emergency disaster aid from President Carter for a state suffering under four days of heavy rain and flooding. The governor appeared in good spirits and good health when he attended a dinner Friday for House Minority Leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz.

The governor's wife, Marion, found him dead in the bathroon of their home, Reilly said. Dr. Merlin Kampfer, Bolin's personal physician, said the cause was an apparent heart attack but the family requested an autopsy.

Six Cougars qualified for the upcoming NCAA championships, and six school records were either tied or broken during the three-day meet. John Sorich tied a school record while qualifying for the NCAA's in the 500-yard freestyle. Piero Ferracuti qualified in the 200- breaststroke and set a school record in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Lance Gordon qualified in the 50-yard freestyle and as a member of the 400-yard freestyle relay team. Gordon set new school records in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle and the 100-yard butterfly.

Wally Andelin, Lyle Christofferson, and Jim Tingey also qualified as part of the 400-yard freestyle relay team, in a time which set a school record.

BYU Coach Tim Powers said finishing ahead of Utah was especially nice. We had lost to them twice during the regular season and we were taking a lot of guff from both the Salt Lake press and the team. They were ahead by one point going into the last day, but we blew them out of the water and finished 30 points ahead of them."

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Eighth-ranked New Mexico clinched the Western Athletic Conference basketball title and an NCAA playoff berth Saturday by crushing Wyoming 93-74 behind the 32-point scoring of Marvin Johnson.

They recorded the best league record in the 15-year history of the WAC with a 13-1 mark. Their overall regular season mark of 24-3 was the best in the history of the school.

Johnson scored a conference record 50 points against Colorado State Thursday night and came back with another fine performance in Saturday's Freshman Steve Anderson said he was the first to catch the flu among the team and said he probably gave it to Alan Taylor. Taylor, who had been sick in bed for most of last week, made the decision to play only minutes before tip-off.

Danny Ainge, who has been limping with an ankle injury, also caught the bug twelve hours before game time. Coach Frank Arnold commended both athletes for their performances despite weak knees and short wind.

BYU lost its season's finale against Utah 81-74 in the Ute's Special Events Center Saturday night, closing its season at 6-8 in a tie for fourth place with Arizona and Arizona State.

While both teams looked sloppy at times, the Utes hit 58 percent from the floor to the Cougars' 40 percent and Utah never trailed.

Utah's Buster Matheney ended the game with 26 points, and helped boost Utah to an NCAA wild card berth. The Utes will face Missouri in first round Both Utah guards Earl Williams and Grey got into early foul trouble trying to guard Danny Ainge. wins league

By GARY L. CHRISTENSEN AND DEBBIE BOOTHE Universe Sports Writers

Sparked by Tina Gunn's record-breaking, career-high 50 points, the BYU women's basketball team raced past Weber State 91-77 Saturday afternoon to win the league championship.

Thursday the Cougars beat Utah State 79-71 at the Spectrum in Logan with Miss Gunn leading all scorers with 36 points.

Undefeated record

The wins gave BYU a 13-0 league record and a 19-5 season total, under Coach Courtney Leishman.
"These girls earned this championship. They've been working like mad since September," Coach Leishman said.

Miss Gunn called the win over Weber a team effort. "Deb Freestone got the ball into me so well, everybody passed really well," she said. "I can't score if they don't pass in."

With 10 points and four assists, Miss Freestone, a 5-9 senior forward with the aggressive speed and ball-handling ability of a guard, played her last home game against Weber.

Miss Freestone agreed that even though Tina Gunn "does all the scoring, we work as a team." "There aren't many sophomores in this country better than Tina Gunn," Leishman said. "And by the time she's a senior, there won't be many players better."

BYU jumped to a 15-4 lead over Weber, then stretched it to 39-20 before the Wildcats battled back to cut the BYU lead to seven points at 46-39 at halftime.

Scoring streak

Weber State closed the gap to 52-49 with 16 minutes left in the game, but that was as close as the Wildcats came in the second half before Tina Gunn poured in 30 of her 50 points.

Miss Gunn hit 19 of 27 field goals and 12 of 16 free throws to set the BYU record.

"Tina is getting more aggressive. She doesn't wait to be fed shots. She's making offensive moves and picking up rebounds for scores," said David Porter, BYU assistant coach.

Miss Gunn showed some of that aggressiveness, bring the crowd to its feet, when she stole the ball twice at half court and dribbled the ball down for fast break layups.

Weber State players Kathy Miller, Ann Avondet, and Nancy Hornsby, agreed Tina Gunn is "unstoppable. She's the best player in the league."

Miss Miller, the league's leading scorer, led WSU with 15 of 34 from the field and 7 of 8 from the line for 37 points. Her final league average is 29.2, compared to Tina Gunn's 28.

Rosemary Jensen added 16 points to the Cougar total followed by Miss Freestone with 10 and Judy Hunter with eight.

If BYU can repeat play like Saturday's win over Weber and an earlier conference win over the University of Utah in regional play Friday and Saturday, the team will fly to southern California for divisional playoffs next weekend.

Ferguson also discounts the importance of competition between Provo and Orem. Most of those feelings, he says, have come from Provo's considering itself too long as the Big Brother of Utah county. "Provo should have recognized Orem as a great neighbor. I don't think there would've been the conflict there is now if we had done that. Fortunately, time heals all wounds."

Ferguson views Provo and Orem "as being one city in the real sense. If we are going to have the attitude that we're both in Provo, Ferguson says, "I'm a little unhappy with the past few years, especially economically. It takes careful, careful planning: carefully controlled growth, not growth at any cost." He expresses concern over services, such as power, that rapidily become outdated or lose considerable effectiveness as a result of inefficient state, may be somewhat uncertain. Ultimately, unchecked growth will have a far-reaching negative impact on the quality and style of life. Most, however, are optimistic. As Ferguson says, "It's going to continue to be a great place to live in, if we work together."

The growing number of people in Utah County make it the second most populous in Utah. From 1970 to 1977 the state grew from 137,776 to an estimated 176,000.

Service problems

Such rapid growth is not without its problems. Power and water lines, sewer systems, street and lands maintenance, and other services are constant concerns of the city fathers. As an indication of this, some sections of Orem's streets are in a state of continual repair. "Some cities control traffic with radar. We use chuckholes," Mangum jokingly says. Yet, the concerns are real and often perplexing.

Future plans for Orem call for, among other projects, a new hospital and an additional shopping mall. A new water treatment plant is expected to reach completion later next year. Also planned are additional parks and an Orem Community

sex discrimination

The U.S. Department of Justice is threatening to file suit against Brigham Young University and 36 local landlords, charging violations of the Fair Housing Act of 1968.

President Dallin H. Oaks said Friday the university will "vigorously defend" its policy of segregating men and women in off-campus apartment complexes.

Five landlords received a letter from the Justice Department Friday which was addressed to H. Hal Visick, BYU General Counsel, but Paul Richards, Public Communications director, said the university had not yet received an official copy. A landlord brought the letter to the university.

The letter, from the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice, said, "This Department has now completed an extensive, time-consuming and painstaking investigation into the off-campus housing practices of Brigham Young University and the housing practices of the major apartment complexes which BYU has approved... This Department has reasonable cause to believe that BYU has caused landlords to segregate their apartment buildings on the basis of sex... and both BYU and the landlords have engaged in a pattern and practice of discrimination in violation of the Act and have denied equal housing opportuity to groups of persons under circumstances which raise a question of general public importance."

One month delay

The letter said filing of a suit would be delayed for one month and asked the university to enter into a consent decree which would "prohibit sexual discrimination or segregation at all housing ... and require reasonable steps to correct any continuing effects of past practices ..."

Bruce Olsen, asst. to the president for University

Relations, said the document "hit us like a ton of bricks." He said the Justice Department had been communicating with BYU, but a lawsuit "wasn't what we had expected."

"We're just going to wait," he stated. "We're not going to negotiate."

The letter said, "we also believe that rules which permit men but not women students to live in specified kinds of apartments are forbidden by the Act."

Housing Director Delyle Barton said, "I don't know what rule they're referring to. All of our regulations apply equally to men and women."

Oaks defends BYU policies

In a written statement, Pres. Oaks defended BYU's policy of separate buildings for each sex.

"Reasonable separation of the sexes in housing for single students reinforces our moral teachings and requirements by helping maintain traditional restraint in relations between sexes ... University standards of sexual behavior and University housing requirements apply equally to men and women, and therefore are not discriminatory."

The letter said BYU and "36 other defendants who own or manage apartments in Provo, Utah" would be named if the suit was filed. The managers and/or owners were not named.

The Daily Universe contacted managers of 29 coed apartment complexes this weekend and found that as of Sunday night, only five had received a copy of the letter — the managers of Alta, Marian, Riviera, Reams and Centennial apartments.

Fifteen managers said FBI agents had visited them to ask about apartment policies.

"I found the curv walking around the grounds"

"I found the guy walking around the grounds," said Ed Eudis, manager of Cedarcrest Apartments. "I approached him and he asked me about our renting policies. He only stayed for five minutes." The visit occured "at the end of the summer." An FBI agent stayed for nearly one and a half hours at the end of October or first of November at Crestwood Apartments, manager Mrs. Heidi Shipp said. "He wanted to know what the housing code was and if the owners or BYU suggested it. He wanted all the literature about the housing code and I drew a map of where the girls and guys were."

All 15 managers who were visited were asked a hypothetical question. "If you had absolutely no vacancies except one room in the girl's (or boy's) section, would you rent it to a person of the opposite sex?"

All contacted said the told the agent they supported BYU regulations and would not rent under those circumstances.

Beverley Harmon, manager of Miller II Apartments, said, "I told him we've never had that problem. The only time we have vacancies is in the summer, because we don't have a pool."

Ronald Tollefson, manager of Centennial Aparments, was asked if he liked the BYU regulations. "I told him that if I had my preference, I would do the same. I felt it was probably a good situation."

Tom Clark, manager of Gunnwells Apartments (formerly Y's Brownstone), described the FBI agent who visited him last August. "He was really a nice guy, kind of average, and he didn't seem excited about what he was doing. He told me he was going to talk to every apartment owner."

According to managers the Universe contacted, the FBI made visits as early as July 1977 through February 1978. The majority of visits occured in August, September and November. No one contacted had been visited during December, but several talked to FBI agents in January and February.

Also asked about hiring

The FBI agent or agents also asked about hiring policies and how managers accepted renters.

Harold Goodlitte, manager of Monte Vista Apartments, said he was asked the percentage of minority and working people living in the complex.

Sheri Nielson, manager of Sparks II, said she was asked "if we were prejudiced against people according to race and morals. I told him we went by BYU standards."

Barbara Smith, manager of Nelson Apartments, said she was asked whether they rented to non-Mormons.

However, Charles Oaks, manager of Riviera Apartments, did not recall being visited by an FBI agent, though he received a letter about the suit. "The man who delivered the letter said they had come by, but I don't remember anyone coming."

Text of Justice Department letter to BYU:

Editor's Note: The following is the complete text of the letter from the Civil Rights Division of the U.S. Justice Department which was received by five Provo landlords this weekend. The letter was released to the press by BYU Public Communications. It was not dated.

Assistant to the President and General Counsel Brigham Young University
Re: Proposed Lawsuit. United States v. Brigham Young University, et al.
Dear Mr. Visick: Mr. H. Hal Visick Assistant to the Pr

Please refer to the correspondence between and attorneys from this Division in March April 1977.

This Department has now completed an ex

This Department has now completed an extensive, time-consuming and painstaking investigation into the off-campus housing policies of Brigham Young University (BYU) and the housing practices of the major apartment complexes which BYU has approved for off-campus housing by its students, to determine whether these policies and practices are consistent with the Fair Housing Act of 1968, 42 U.S.C. 3601 et seq., as amended. On the basis of this investigation, this Department has reasonable cause to believe that BYU has caused landlords to segregate their apartment buildings on the basis of sex as a condition of being eligible to house BYU students, and that by this practice, both BYU and the landlords have engaged in a pattern and practice of discrimination in violation of the Act and have denied equal housing opportunity to groups of person under circumstances which raise a question of general public importance. See U.S.C. 3613. While we have carefully considered the contentions in your letter of April 20, 1977, to Ms. Joan Magagna of our office, and while we appreciate the temperate and reasonable tone in which it was written, we do not believe that the practices in question are exempt from the provisions of the Act under 42 U.S.C. 3607, or that institution of the proposed lawsuit would deny BYU or its students any rights protected by the First Amendment. Accordingly, we have determined, pursuant to this Department's authority under 3613, that such practices require injunctive and affirmative relief to insure the full enjoyment of the rights secured by the Act.

Accordingly, the undersigned has been authorized and directed to file a civil suit alleging violations of the Fair Housing Act by BYU and by 36 other defendants who own or manage apartments in Provo, Utah. The complaint, which is to be filed in the United States District Court of the District of Utah, alleges, among other things, that the defendants have refused to rent dwellings to persons because of their sex, and have discriminated in the terms, conditions or privileges of rental because of the sex of the renter. The gravamen of the complaint is that, by requiring sexual segregation in housing covered by the Act, BYU and the landlords have engaged in practices which deny housing to individuals on grounds prohibited by the Act. We also believe that rules which permit men but not women students to live in specified kinds of apartments are forbidden by the Act.

which permit men but now women students of the Act.

In specified kinds of apartments are forbidden by the Act.

We recognize that the problems are sex segregation in housing occupied in part by students are of a sensitive character and we are particularly anxious to ascertain whether a negotiated settlement can be reached. We are looking towards a resolution which will correct what we believe to be unlawful conduct, while at the same time limiting federal intrusion into the practices of BYU and the landlords to the minimum compatible with equal opportunity. See United States v. West Peachtree Tenth Corp., 437 F. 2d 221, 229 (5th Cir, 1971). Accordingly, we are prepared to delay the filing of this suit, for a period of approximately one month, to a afford all defendants an opportunity to enter into a year of a period of approximately one month, to a decree can be promptly negotiated. The specifics of an appropriate consent decree, of course, depend on the circumstances of the case, and during negotiations if may be necessary for us to obtain further information in order to forumlate the details of the remedy required in this case. We believe that the decree should prohibit sexual discrimination or segregation at all housing covered by the Act and require reasonable steps to correct any continuing effects of past practices. The details of the transition to nondiscriminatory residential opportunities can be worked out during negotiations, or, if a settlement cannot be reached, then through litigation. We wish to assure you, in any event, that, whether the case is settled or Fair Housing Act permits.

We urge that you contact us promptly and advise us as to whether you believe that it would be helpful to initiate negotiations towards a consent judgment which would require the end of segregration in housing by sex, at least in the absence of compelling considerations of privacy. If you believe that such negotiations would be helpful, we propose that you and the attorneys for the landlords meet with representatives of this Department at a mutually convenient time and place to siscuss an appropriate decree. If an agreement has not been reached within a reasonable period after negotiations begin, and it appears that no agreement is imminent at that time, it will be our responsibility to file the suit. We would, of course, be prepared to continue to discuss a negotiated set thement of the case even after the lawsuit has been filed, and we would agree to such reasonable extensions of time for answering the complaint or otherwise pleading as may be appropriate under the circumstances.

Please feel free to contact the undersigned (202) 139-4123 or Mr. Daniel P. O'Hanlon (202) 739-4129 if you have any questions concerning the matters set forth in this letter. Assistant Attorney General Drew S. Days, at whose direction the undersigned is writing this letter, as personally aware of the complexity and sensitivity of the issues in this case and has asked us to advise you of his personal interest in it and his availability to meet with you. He will not, of course, be in a position to personally handle protracted and detailed negotiations.

We are sending copies of this letter to 36 landlords, and also inviting them to initiate negotiations with us. We enclose a copy of our cover letter to the landlords. We hope that this matter can be promptly and amicably settled on a nondiscriminatory basis which recognizes the rights of all concerned.

Despite all of the film's intriguing glances that shroud the routines and procedures of the healing profession, for all of its questioning on the ambiguities of clinical death, MGM's "Coma" remains purely, simply and absolutely a scary bit of film.

Michael Crichton's adaptation of Robin Cook's bestseller is effective to the extreme, and the results are gutwrenching. For many years Brigham Young University has worked on a cooperative basis with landlords in the BYU students is of the highest quality consistent with acceptable rental levels. There is now ample Provo area to assure that all housing rented to housing of acceptable quality in the community for both men and women students of BYU.

As a church-sponsored institution, Brigham Young University teaches the highest standards of Christian morality, and expects its students and faculty to live up to those standards. For example,

Reasonable separation of the sexes in housing for single students reinforces our moral teachings and requirements by helping maintain traditional whether living on or off campus, live in buildings or separate wings of buildings restricted to residents restraint in relations between sexes. Judge Willis Ritter dies in Salt Lake hospita

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Willis W. Ritter, a feisty chief federal judge considered by many as one of the most cantankerous and most frequently overturned jurists in the country, is dead at 79.

Ritter, a rotund silvery-haired man who was as unpredictable in his private life as he was in court, died at Holy Cross Hospital Saturday night of cardiac arrest. Private funeral services were pending.

Ritter had been hospitalized off and on for the past several years, refusing to disclose his illness. It was recently reported that he suffered from cancer.

Much of Ritter's workload in recent days was taken over by visiting judges. Last fall, former U.S. Attorney Ramon Child, saying it had become so difficult for his attorneys to appear before Ritter, had the Justice Department ask an appeals court to remove the judge from cases involving the federal government. Shortly after, the state of Utah also asked that he be stopped from trying cases involving the state.

Though he was often vehemently opposed by lawyers, congressmen and other judges, few denied having respect for his legal mind.

"Judge Willis Ritter and I were bitter enemies," said Attorney General Robert B. Hansen. "Even so, I had great respect for his intellectual capacity, which was near genius."

Hansen had fought Ritter tooth and nail for the past five years, once circulating petitions among Utah Bar members seeking to get the nation's oldest senior judge disbarred.

The most recent Ritter-Hansen confrontation was the night before killer Gary Gilmore was executed by firing squad on Jan. 17, 1977. Just hours before Gilmore was to die, Ritter stayed the execution.

Hansen had the parting shot, however, by flying to Denver and successfully appealing Ritter's decision to the U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals, a longtime Ritter nemesis.

Few know for certain how many times the Denver court overturned Ritter decisions, but Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, former mayor of Salt Lake City and an avowed opponent of Ritter, estimated two years ago that of 39 habeas-corpus cases appealed from Utah, 30 were overturned.

However, Ritter's batting average in higher courts apparently was better.

The Salt Lake Tribune said records showed that "on every decision which went to the high court the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Utahn although the circuit court had decided against him."

In 1952, Ritter had the U.S. marshal haul the postmaster and scores of his employees before the bench. He threatened to hold them in contempt if they failed to silence some noisy mail elevators. Late last year, he ordered his marshals to jail some plumbers who were making too much noise near his cour-

Another time, he banned cameras and tape recorders from the entire federal building to "protect the rights of defendants and witnesses who did not want to be photographed or interviewed." He even brought into court for a reprimand a television news director because the station artist had sketched a courtroom scene, even though the art work was done by memory at the station.

In 1973, Ritter issued a 10-day restraining order prohibiting police from issuing parking tickets in Salt Lake City. Later, the order was overturned, but not before it caused traffic chaos.

Some lawyers, primarily his friends, called Ritter one of the most brilliant legal minds on the federal bench. They claimed his irascible image was created by a hostile press. Some said they saw in him a balance for this conservative Mormon community.

Federal Judge Willis W. Ritter, right, chats with students and faculty during the BYU J. Reuben Clark Law School dedication in 1975. The controversial magistrate, who died over the weekend, was the oldest chief judge in the federal system. His death ends forever the "grandfather clause" in the Federal Judiciary Retirement Act.

Crews clear snowslide

By MARK SEVERTS and DAVE HEYLEN Monday Magazine Writers

Utah Department of Transportation road crews, working around the clock for nearly three days, cut their way through tons of snow Sunday afternoon to open U.S. Highway 189 in Provo Canyon, closed since Friday by a massive avalance.

Bob Callister, a spokesman for the Utah Highway Patrol, said the road opened shortly before 3 p.m. to through traffic. Crews found no vehicles beneath the mountain of snow. Comes down about 4 a.m.

"The amount of snow covering the road was tremendous," said J. Myron Taylor, district maintenance supervisor for UDOT. He estimated between 30 and 75 feet of snow at one time blocked the highway. The slide covered about 300 yards of The huge snow slide cascaded down Mt. Timpanogos early Friday morning, cut a wide swath through Slide Canyon and rolled across the highway about three-fourths of a mile up-canyon from Bridal Veil Falls, and just downstream from the Utah Power and Light diversion dam.

"The amount of snow covering the road was

Water flow meter readings at the UP&L Olmsted hydro station fixed the time of the avalanche about 4 a.m., fortunately when there was no traffic in the ca-

The thickness of the snow, coupled with its unique hardness, hampered bulldozer and snowplow operators in their removal efforts, and only one-fifth of the slide was uncovered by Saturday. Taylor said many avalanches can be cleared by rotary snow removers, but, "this one is the same as moving dirt." Heavy equipment operators had to work around the clock to open the highway by Sunday afternoon.

Little damage

Damages caused by the slide have been minimal, state and federal officials said. Paul H. Skabelund, watershed specialist for the Unita National Forest, said the avalanche didn't hinder the flow of the Provo River, "but a small slide by Bridal Veil Falls did dam the river momentarily."

Curtis L. Pitcher, UP&L employee, said the diversion dam received minor damage to its "flash boards and iron work." However, Pitcher said much of the water is being lost back into the river.

"The result of the water loss has caused us to shut down one of our turbines, and our electrical output has been reduced to about half," Olmsted operator Steve Murdock said.

Utah County residents were not affected by the Olmsted power reduction because, according to Murdock, "the power is pooled from various stations."

Sundance closed for weekend

Sundance Ski Resort reported it was forced to shut down Friday through Sunday because of the highway closure.

"Ninety-nine percent of our employes are from Utah Valley, and with the road closed, we decided to close for the weekend," said Kent M. Warren, assistant head ski instructor. "We've had to turn a number of cars away while the road was closed."

Warren estimated the loss to be about $10,000 per day.

Although Utah County skiers travel up Provo Canyon to reach Park City ski resorts, operators there said they didn't notice any decrease in lift ticket sales. Skiers apparently made their way up Parley's Canyon via Salt Lake City, said Lauri Thomas, marketing assistant at Park City.

Worst since 1938

Long time residents in Provo Canyon were not surprised by Friday's avalanche. "It happens every five years or so, but not this severe," said one Slide Canyon landowner, who asked not to be identified.
"This is the worst one we've seen since 1938. In those days we didn't have snow removal equipment like we do now, and we would take wooden planks and lay them over the snow to make a temporary road."

The landowner and his wife, who were snowshoeing up to their property Saturday, said they had never heard of anyone being killed from the regular Provo Canyon avalanches.

A similar snow slide came down in American Fork Canyon Thursday night, temporarily stranding four men above Timpanogos Cave. The men were rescued Friday morning when state road crews cut a path through the avalanche.

Callister said the road crews were still up Provo Canyon Sunday night working on final snow removal and would begin on the American Fork Canyon slide as soon as possible. Danger still exists

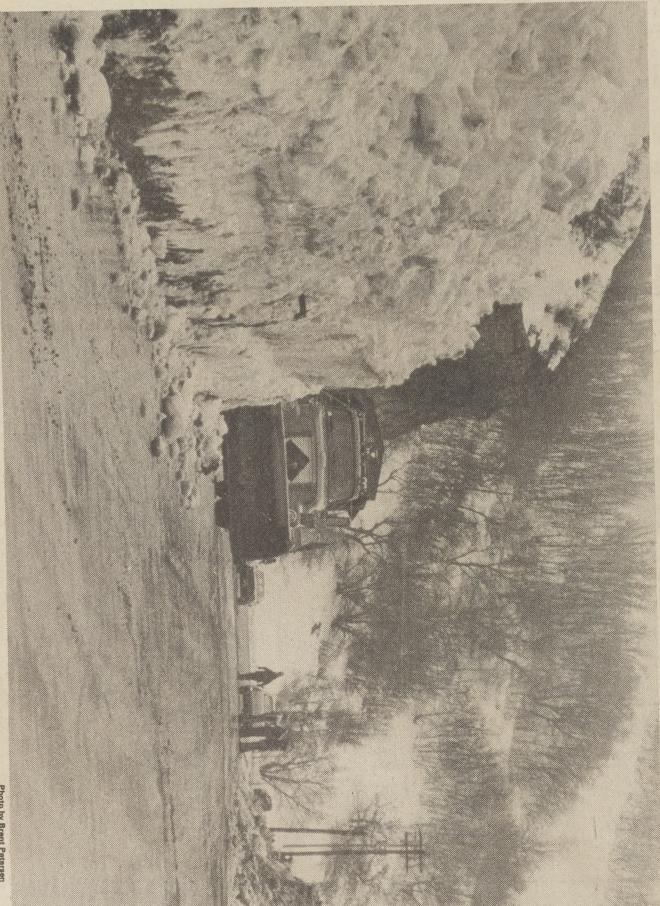

A spokesman for the Uinta National Forest said avalanche danger still exists in Provo Canyon. The Lost Creek area, north of Bridal Veil Falls, is one other area area known for its slides in the past.

Wet, heavy snow which has fallen in the past week is responsible for the avalanches, Forest Service experts say. Some of these huge slides can have the destructive force of an earthquake.
